

What To Expect From Your Hospital Stay

- We have a wing of the hospital that is dedicated to joint replacement patients and nurses that specialize in your care.
- You will be up and moving around on the day of your surgery, if your surgery is in the morning you will have your first physical therapy that afternoon/night.
- You will have physical therapy and occupational therapy multiple times before you leave the hospital; this will ensure you are able to perform needed daily functions when you return home.
- If you have dietary restrictions or requests our kitchen staff will make the necessary changes to accommodate these.
- You will be staying in a single patient room and there is a couch/bed that can be used for a loved one to stay with you overnight.
- Please feel free to bring reading material or something to make your stay more comfortable.
- On the day of discharge you will need someone to drive you home and help listen to the discharge instructions.
